NEWLAMDS ON THE PORTO RICO TARIFF.

The Baltimore News gives the following resume of Mr. Newlands' speech in the House of Representatives:

Mr. Newlands of Nevada was the first speaker. He is a man of medium height, reddish hair, blue eyes, smooth face, deliberate and impressive as a speaker. He consumed two hours in delivering a carefully prepared argument against both the constitutionality and policy of the bill.

Mr. Newlands was heard with undivided attention and his remarks produced a strong impression among the members, for he is known as an independent thinker and a clear-headed and progressive statesman.

Mr. Newlands stated the problem before Congress in these luminous terms:

"As the result of a humanitarian war inaugurated, not for conquest, but to free Cuba from Spain's oppression, the United States finds itself in the qualified possession of Cuba, in the unqualified possession of Porto Rico, and in the disputed possession of the Philippines. All these islands are today under the military power of the United States Government. Congress is now called upon to act, and the questions are: First—What duty and good morals require of us regarding these islands? Second—What self-interest prompts us to do? Third—What our constitutional power is regarding these islands? Every phase of obligation, duty and right which could be presented to us by any conquest or cession of territory is presented to us in the three classes of acquisition thus secured."

Mr. Newlands declared emphatically that no complications existed as to Porto Rico unless they were created by the maladministration of Congress. Porto Rico's area is small, he said, its people can be easily absorbed; they are ready and willing and eager to share with us the benefits and burdens of our Government. Their industrial competition, he insisted, would not be serious, even though they are taken inside the tariff wall.

Mr. Newlands stated it to be his belief that the dominant party was disposed to establish in Porto Rico a territorial form of government and extend to the island and its people our Constitution and laws, but, he declared, they feared that to do so would be to establish a precedent that would control our action when it came time to deal permanently with the Philippines. In the case of Porto Rico, he said, we were dealing with an island near our own coast, easily governed, inhabited by a people who have evinced every disposition to be friendly, and to maintain peaceful relations with us. The Philippines on the other hand, he said, embraced in the archipelago some 1,700 islands, 7,000 miles distant from our shores, inhabited by a diverse population, ranging from barbarous to semi-civilized tribes, speaking different languages, having different habits and customs, many of them displaying a hostile feeling toward us, and all of them more or less intractable.

Mr. Newlands held that so far as Porto Rico was concerned, it would not be long, in any event, whatever present objections there might be in the dominant party to that course, before freedom of trade would be established between Porto Rico and the United States. He said he believed that the settlement of the constitutional question raised by the bill would not be long delayed. He believed that a discriminating tariff was unconstitutional, and would exist only temporarily. Indeed, he believed such an unjust condition of trade would last but a short time, even if it were constitutional, because policy and expediency enlightened self-interest, that governing policy of enlightened nations, would forbid the continued existence of a state of affairs that could have but one result—the creation of unrest and dissatisfaction among the people who suffer by the discriminations. He believed the sense of justice of the people of the United States would lead to the repeal of this contemplated law if it was written on the statute books.

Mr. Newlands warned the Republicans that the proposed inequality of the laws they proposed to establish would make the government of Porto Rico vastly more difficult than now seems to be the case. He declared with great impressiveness that whether these is-

THE SONG OF THE IMPERIALISTS.

The imperialists, since the Boers have been made to retire before superior numbers, have come from the hiding places they have occupied during the winter of their discontent and have engaged in chirping the praises of the British. The causes that make up the notes of their song are not many, and some of those are not founded in truth. The chief note used is the aid we received during the Spanish war, which is given at too high a pitch to make harmony when set to music for the friends of the Boers and equal rights. While it is true that England gave to us its moral support during that war, it was given, as the Duke of Manchester said, as a result of an understanding with the administration which has been developing since that time, and which continues to make us trouble respecting our new possessions.

The object, since we received the moral support of England, has been to make the United States as near a British colony as it is possible to make it. The recent abuse of the Boers and praise of the valor and doings of British arms and British intention respecting the Boers, are a part of the work to imperialize our country. Not anything was said by these worshippers of royalty and the English system of aristocracy until the fortunes of war declared in favor of John over the water. Not anything was said that would lead to a conclusion that the imperialist press was silently waiting for an opportunity favored by an imperial success, to voice in song the praises of imperial government and its methods.

A sought-for condition unfavorable to Boer success has come, and the opportunity is improved to hurl slurs and falsehoods against the Burghers. It is now discerned that the Boers have conquered the land they live in from the black people in Africa, which should not be mentioned by an imperialist, as it is true that the territory now called United States was conquered from the red man. It has also been learned at no remote period that the Boers made raids upon the black people and carried away their children and made them work upon their farms and in their homes, which is another matter that the imperialists would do well not to make public, since it is true that the people of Great Britain and people in our country have been guilty of doing the same thing.

The Boers if successful, it is claimed by the imperialist press, would cause civilization to recede to where it was one hundred years ago, which is nonsense, as it is ascertained that the Boers, when numbers are taken into relation, have expended much more money for the cause of education than imperial England ever thought of doing.

The injustice of the Boers by conquering the country they occupy in Africa from the blackman is very pronounced and is a heinous offense committed by them which the Lord of Hosts is now punishing, and the imperial armies are the angels of mercy employed to do the work. When the work of punishment is completed the imperial government will beyond question, because of its great sense of justice to the blackman, make amends to the negroes by returning to the savages the Boer country in Africa when the Boers are slain as a punishment or driven from the country. Religious enthusiasts and others who are singing songs of praise of the kindness of the British to the blackman do not know, perhaps, that these imperial Britons have slain many more of the people of inferior races than any class of men in modern times, and have conquered from them more territory than any nation on the globe. These Britons, who are lauded to heaven when the Boers could not beat back the Zulu tribe, for their protection and the protection of British subjects and British territory in South Africa made war upon the Zulus and almost annihilated them. Deliver us from prating weakness or the assertions of ignorance when used to excuse the acts of one of the gods they worship, which, in this instance is the imperial power of Great Britain.

The whole contention is about who shall rule South Africa, the Britton or the Boer. The supremacy of England over the power of the burgher in the Transvaal and other South African territory is the bone over which imperial England is making war upon the men who made it possible in the early history of that country for a British subject to live in South Africa.

England does not intend the American revolution shall be repeated in any other part of the earth, and for that cause the Transvaal Dutch must be conquered now, which, in the opinion of each American imperialist, is as it should be without including the question of right or the question of liberty when applied to the Boers.

NEWS OF THE STATE.

Brief Items Culled From the Papers on Our Exchange Table.

An electric light plant in Gardnerville is among the possibilities in the near future.

A young German laborer of Winnemucca committed suicide last week, when under the influence of liquor, by throwing himself from the wagon under the wheels.

A ten-foot vein of copper ore, carrying over 20 per cent of that metal is alleged to have been found in a Churubill group of mines owned by Philadelphians.

Charles Turner, an old timer from Eureka, about 70 years of age, who had been on a protracted spree, died while eating breakfast at De Lamar last Saturday.

Superintendent Kinkade estimates the damage to the hoisting works of the Gould & Curry by fire Sunday at $2,000, with $1,000 insurance. It is thought that the charred buildings will be taken down and only a shaft house built.

A Gay Drummer.

Will Perkins, formerly of Reno, but now a gay drummer, with headquarters in San Francisco, is here for a few days on business bent. He has been kept busy shaking hands with old friends since his arrival, but at the same time manages to get in a word now and then setting forth the many good qualities of the stock he carries. He has with him samples of the finest of gents' furnishing goods, hosiery and underwear.

If a good "gift of gab" and an affable manner, coupled with fine goods, count for anything, "Perk" will make a howling success as a drummer.

St. Patrick's Ball.

Do not fail to attend the ball to be given in the pavilion on the evening of St. Patrick's day by Messrs. Julien and Lucy.

A superb orchestra will be in attendance and no persons of exceptional character will be admitted. It is probable that this will be one of the most brilliant and largest social gatherings of the season.

Carson Ladies Coming.

The drill team of the Carson Lodge Degree of Honor, auxiliary to the A. O. U. W., will exemplify their work this evening in the hall of the Reno lodge. The ladies composing the Carson team are said to be well up in all the intricacies of drill work, and an interesting exhibition is assured.

Last Sad Rites.

The funeral of Mrs. G. W. Robison will take place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Baptist church. Rev. B. F. Hadelson will preach the funeral sermon. The interment will be in the G. A. R. plot, and will be under the auspices of the Relief Corps.

The Judge's Affidavit.

Some years ago Justice of the Peace Beasley of Missouri was personally interested in a lawsuit, being a party thereto. It was necessary for him to make an affidavit, and he deprecated the idea of making it before another justice or a notary and depriving himself of a fee. So he filled out his affidavit, swore to it before himself, signed it as justice and as witness and awaited developments. He was sure that he would win and thus be able to tax the costs up to the other side.

When the case came up before Judge Kelley, the affidavit was offered in evidence and promptly objected to, the reason being given that a justice could not swear himself.

"Let me see the affidavit," said Judge Kelley.

It was handed up to the judge, who scanned it carefully for a few moments and then asked:

"Mr. Beasley, will you kindly tell me how you appeared before yourself when you swore yourself and identified your own signature?"

"That was very easy, your honor," replied Beasley. "I borrowed a looking glass and went through the formalities before it."

Beasley was somewhat astonished when Judge Kelley sustained the objection.—Omaha World-Herald.

Weapons of the Skunk.

A skunk once challenged a lion to single combat. The lion promptly declined the honor. "Why," said the skunk, "are you afraid?" "Very much so," said the lion, "for you would only gain fame for having the honor to fight with a lion, while every one who met me for a month would know I had been in company with a skunk."

This reminds us of the story about Henry Ward Beecher's father, the famous Dr. Lyman Beecher, who, when asked why he did not reply to somebody who had severely attacked him in a newspaper, replied that when a young man, crossing a field one night with an armful of books, he saw a small animal and after hurling several volumes at the animal found he got the worst of it, and ever since had thought it better to let such animals alone.—Quincy Herald.

GOOD OFFICES ARE REFUSED.

England Prefers to Settle the Difficulty in Its Own Way.

Special to the JOURNAL.

LONDON, March 14.—Lord Salisbury this afternoon received a cable from the United States government tendering its good offices to secure peace between Great Britain and the South African Republics.

Great Britain politely but firmly declines such offers, desiring to settle the controversy in her own way. The British Government does not consider that it is a case for mediation.

Lord Salisbury has cabled a reply to Presidents Steyn and Kruger, declining to discuss peace on a basis of independence of the two republics. Kruger and Steyn both stated in a cable made public today that peace would only be acceptable with independence. It is clearly the intention of Great Britain to annex the two republics.

A cable received tonight announces the arrival of British troops at Bloemfontein.

The burghers of the Free State are discouraged and have practically abandoned the war.

BRIEF WIRED WORDS.

The first issue of the Topeka Capital, under C. M. Sheldon's (as Christ would do it) regime, has appeared.

A large and well equipped counterfeiting plant has been discovered in the mountains near San Bernardino.

Snowslides near British Columbia are reported to have caused considerable damage.

Both sides are resting on their arms at Frankfort and trouble is momentarily expected.

An Awful Mishap.

Two passengers on an Atlantic liner, one an American and the other an Englishman, did not exchange the farewell courtesies when the steamer reached her pier usual between voyagers who have occupied adjoining staterooms and hobbled during an ocean voyage. A plausible explanation was vouchsafed by the American.

During the voyage the Englishman persisted in fraternizing with the American in a most obtrusive and annoying manner. Within two days of Boston the Englishman one morning hunted up the American and found him in apparent despondency, gazing seaward from the hurricane-deck. "Confounded blue this morning, old chap. What's the matter?" And the Britisher slapped his companion on the back.

"Matter enough," growled the American. "Ship's lost; captain don't know which way to steer. Forgot to wind the compass last night."

The Englishman listened with mouth agape, then rushed off to tell his friends of the consequential mishap. Evidently the glib Britisher was "pushed along" for some time until he found everybody geying him.—Boston Post.

He Knew Playfair.

The manager of the phosphate mine was a Scotchman, tall, big boned, with the strongest Glasgow Doric in his tongue. At first he was obdurate and desired us to leave the ground and to drop the specimens which we had taken before he appeared. At last I addressed him in good Scotch and asked him whether he thought I was a mining adventurer. "Aye, that's just what ye are."

"No," I replied, "I am a Scotch professor."

"Then, if ye are, ye'll be havin a name."

"My name," I said, "is Playfair."

"Man," said my Scotch friend, "are ye Lyon Playfair?"

I assured him I was, but expressed surprise that he knew the name, to which he replied, looking from his 6 feet 2 inches with compassion on my 5 feet 4 inches, "Hoot, mon, yer name's traveled farther than yer wee legs will ever carry ye."—Letters of Lyon Playfair.

There is none made so great but he may both need help and service and stand in fear of the power and unkindness even of the meanest of mortals.

Either was known to the earliest scientists.

As a cure for rheumatism Chamber-that would relieve me until I used like magic with me. My foot was swollen and painful very much, but one good application of Pain Balm relieved me. For Sale by Wm. Pinniger, Manager Martin, of the Pierson drug great run on Chamberlain's Cough days of ja gripple there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heal up the sore throat and lungs and give relief within a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily

IN THE GRIP
OF THE LAW.

The Suspected Sacramento Mur-derer Easily Captured by Sheriff McLunis.

Mark Westlake, the suspected mur-derer of R. R. Watts in Sacramento, was trapped in the drag-net of the law yesterday morning. His captors were Deputy Sheriff Hinters of Sacramento and Sheriff McLunis of this city.

It was a simple task. The accused seemed to have taken little pains to cover his trail. He arrived ten days ago and registered under an alleged alias at the Clarendon hotel. After applying at several places for employment he secured work on a Central Pacific section crew.

Westlake was at work when the officers called upon him yesterday morning. He made an effort to hide in the brush near the track, but was easily captured.

The prisoner answers the description of the person wanted, but, as is natural, protests that a mistake has been made,
and claims that things are not what they seem.

Westlake proved a tractable prisoner, but preserved strict silence when questioned. It is said that a reward of three hundred dollars was offered for his apprehension. If this be true the plum will fall to Sheriff McLunis, as the California law forbids paying rewards of this sort to officers within the State.

The deputy sheriff and his prisoner left last night for Sacramento.

NEVADA CATTLE
THE BEST.

A Sale of Nevada Raised Herefords to Take Place in Kansas City.

Armour, Fankhouser, Sparks and Logan advertise a sale of a lot of blooded cattle to take place on Wednesday, April 25th, at the Kansas City Stock Yards. These sales are very popular, drawing cattle breeders from all sections of the Union. The breeders who offer cattle at these sales are recognized to be the foremost and most reliable cattle raisers of the United States, and when purchasers secure cattle offered by them they know them to be either thoroughbreds or just as represented. The sale will undoubtedly bring together a larger number of cattle purchasers than any previous sale. Another important consideration is that while it brings the raisers prominently before the people it also does more, perhaps, than has ever been done to bring Nevada before the people of the East, as Mr. Sparks, one of the promoters of these sales, is recognized to be among the foremost men in the business, and as Secretary of Agriculture Wilson stated when inspecting his herds at his home ranch three miles south of Reno: "Mr.
Sparks, instead of importing cattle you should be exporting, as your stock is even superior to any of the imported stock I have seen."

A statement of that kind from a recognized authority on cattle, holding a United States Secretaryship, is certainly the very best recommendation that could be given. For that reason we are justified in asserting that Nevada cattle beat the world.

F. X. Schoonmaker gave Renoites another opportunity last evening to enjoy a rare oratorical treat. The atsired in view of the fact that the proceeds were to be devoted to a cause worthy of the support of all citizens of Reno, namely, increasing and improving the equipment of the high school.

Mr. Schoonmaker's subject, "The Morality, Art and Literature of China," was well chosen, inasmuch as Mr.
Schoonmaker was full of his theme, having been a resident of China and a student of its morals and manners for a number of years. The lecture throughout was a cluster of gems of oratory.

Address by Newlands.

auds were to be regarded as dependencies or territories, freedom of immigration and equality of rights and burdens must be established and maintained, for otherwise, he argued, each community discriminated against would regard itself as the victim of prejudice or the self-interest of the people of the United States. Unrest and dissatisfaction would be created by such conditions, feelings that would be easily kindled into overt hostility.

Referring particularly to the Philippines, Mr. Newlands said that the dominant party is desirous of preventing freedom of migration and free trade between the United States and the Philippines. This feeling he believed to be general throughout the country.
But, he claimed, there was but one constitutional way of accomplishing this, and that was to declare that the Philippines do not belong to us and that the sovereignty of the United States would not be exercised in these islands except for their pacification and the establishment of a stable government and the final establishment of independent self-government in those distant islands.
Duty, interest and constitutional obligations all point to this as the only correct course for the United States to pursue with reference to the Philippines.

Porto Rico, he said, relating to the bill, presents a different problem. All parties are agreed that it is a permanent possession of the United States.
What shall be done with it? Our plain duty, he insisted, is to incorporate that neighboring island into the Union as a Territory, with all the rights and privileges under the Constitution and our laws that inhere to a Territory. Equality of right and equality of burden would render the people of that island render the people of that island satisfied with our scheme of government.
They would be contented with a state of tutelage which would ultimately lead to their representation in the union of States. Discrimination, inequality of rights and burdens would be a source of never-ending irritation and opposition that would make a condition of peaceful tutelage impossible.

Mr. Newlands stated that his opposition to the permanent retention of the Philippines arose from the fact that under the Constitution the Philippines would have the right to come to our country, and their goods would come in free of duty. No one could measure their competition with our laboring people, and its effect on our wage system. It would be a second Chinese invasion.
